In The Moment

“We do not remember days, we remember moments.”
~ Cesare Pavese

Often times in the field of human services our days get bogged down with paperwork, deadlines, regulations, and stress. Yet, we somehow always find a way to look past the days and remember the moments that define exactly why we do what we do.

This column is dedicated to highlighting those moments that serve as a bright light of happiness and gratification in serving others. We are often told it takes a special person to do what we do, however our lives are forever touched by the special people we serve day in and day out. Please share any “In the Moment” moments that you find outshine the “bad” days.

Send your moments to Lydia Clark at lclark@olliewebbinc.org.

10 THINGS TO DO IN JANUARY

1. Become a mentor in your community.
2. Learn more about mentoring.
3. Partner with a mentoring organization.
5. Think about the mentors in your life, post a tribute to them online, then tweet about them using the #NationalMentoringMonth hashtag.
6. Read the latest research and find resources on mentoring.
7. Serve your community on MLK Day of Service, January 18, by deciding to become a mentor.
8. Make a donation to a mentoring organization in your community.
9. Go to YouTube on Thank Your Mentor Day™ (January 14) and make the National Mentoring Month videos the most popular of the day.
10. Explore ways to help children succeed academically through mentoring.

Thank You!

Thank you to all of our mentors, mentees, volunteers, and partnering organizations such as Midlands Mentoring Partnership, who have given us a lot to feel grateful for this year!

In case you haven’t heard of our Just Friends Mentoring Program: The program for our Just Friends participants has 3 components: These are young men and ladies who have developmental disabilities and are between the ages of 13—18.

1. Peer mentoring relationships with a peer who does not have a developmental disability
2. Small and large group social events
3. Social skills or life skills based educational classes

And we are always looking for candidates for Teen Mentors (13-18):

The Just Friends Program is a peer mentoring and friendship program that matches teens with developmental disabilities (e.g., Down Syndrome, Learning Disabilities, Autism, etc.) to teens without disabilities. Due to the negative stereotypes that individuals with developmental disabilities experience, Just Friends was created to bring social, recreational, and friendship opportunities to these teenagers. The opportunity to interact with teens without disabilities in “typical” teenage activities is few and far between for many individuals with developmental disabilities who join Just Friends.

To learn more, please contact the “Just Friends” coordinator: Amanda Clark at aclark@olliewebbcenterinc.org or 402.346.5220 ext. 31 or and check out our blog: https://peer2peermentoring.wordpress.com.
Natural Supports & Community Connections
~from the Arc of Indiana

In addition to applying for government funded services, including applying for Medicaid Waivers, it is also important to explore what is available in your community that may provide help and supports – what are often called “natural supports.”

So what are natural supports? Natural supports are the relationships that occur in everyday life. Natural supports usually involve family members, friends, co-workers, neighbors and acquaintances. Individuals with intellectual and developmental disabilities often need help in developing these connections, but once they do these “natural systems of support” become an important part of their life in the community.

For example, being involved in a YMCA swimming program, community center arts class, or worship services may lead to friendships and connections that last far beyond the actual event. Overtime, these connections can help an individual build a strong community network and support system.

Some ways to build natural supports include:
- Participate in community activities and projects – Help out on a “Clean City Day” collecting recyclables. Join in “A Day of Caring” where groups help out in projects throughout the town or city.
- Join groups and clubs – Check out groups for people with disabilities such as Special Olympics and Best Buddies, as well as groups and clubs open to people of all abilities in your community. If you are in school, get involved in extracurricular clubs and youth groups like boy scouts or girl scouts, or sign up for summer camps.
- Socialize with family and neighbors.
- Explore work opportunities – Think about what you like to do. Visit work sites where people do things that interest you. Find out if you can work as an intern or volunteer to see if you like that kind of work.
- Attend church and faith based activities outside of traditional worship services.

How can you help others strengthen their natural supports?
- Listen carefully and help individuals discover and express their interests and talents.
- Learn more about activities individuals are already involved in and explore ways connections can be strengthened.
- Make a list of community resources that fit the individual’s interests.
- Help individuals explore their communities to find activities and resources that fit their interests.
- Encourage and help individuals attend social or community activities.

Ask others for ideas and help.
Sibshops is an award-winning, nationally affiliated program for the brothers and sisters of individuals with developmental disabilities.

Sibshops are lively celebrations which convey a sense of joy, wonder, and play!

The program is uniquely designed to provide high-energy activities for the siblings of children with developmental disabilities. Sibshops is a place where siblings may obtain peer support and education within a recreational context; while having fun, sibs connect with each other about similar experiences. Lunch is served.

This program is funded in part by a grant from the United Way of the Midlands.

Smooth & Steady Transitions

This educational event will provide information addressing support and services after high school and beyond.

If you have a student in Middle School, High School or a Transition Program, this event is for you! The recommended age to begin the process is age 16. This event will provide information addressing what to plan for, when to start the process and disability services and supports available after the school years are done.

Since planning for the future of a student with disabilities can arouse fear of the unknown, a parent may tend to delay addressing these issues, and instead focus only on the present. It is our belief, however, that working through these fears and thinking about the child’s best future interest will ensure a meaningful outcome.

~National Association of Special Education Teachers

The key to a manageable transition is getting informed and planning early!

NEW! Each attendee will leave with a checklist to help navigate the transition process and a Self Determination Workbook to assist individuals with disabilities along their path to adulthood.

Presenter: Laurie Ackermann, Executive Director of Ollie Webb Center, Inc.

Laurie, a graduate of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, has worked in the field of developmental disabilities for over 20 years. "We are advocates, we are mentors, we are neighbors, we are friends, we are fellow co-workers." Those are all roles Laurie feels are deeply important ones that Ollie Webb Center, Inc. fulfills for families. Her life journey has been tightly interwoven with the organization—two of her siblings benefitted from the programs offered and her parents were among the first "Pilot Parents." So it seemed destined that an organization that has meant so much to her family would be where she would land. She has served as the Executive Director since 2003, when she led the merger of The Arc of Omaha and Career Solutions, Inc. into what Ollie Webb Center, Inc. is today.

The PRISM Project is sponsored by the Arc of Omaha at Ollie Webb Center, Inc., with assistance from the United Way of the Midlands and the Nebraska Department of Education.

“I have a lot of different backgrounds,” Amanda Wells, Ollie Webb’s new Employment Services Coordinator, told me recently. And indeed she has.

Amanda began her career as an administrative assistant in the health world, working for a geriatrics facility. From there, she joined the stock industry completing the Series 7 and 63 exams and receiving her broker’s license. “Such a bear!” she joked. “I hated those exams.” She actually liked working in the field however, but after a few years Amanda found herself really missing working directly with and for people. When the stock market crashed in 2008, she took it as a sign that it was time to change careers.

From the market sector, Amanda became the Director of Human Resources for a company in the construction business. She really enjoyed the job, and was able to begin work on her master’s degree at the same time. During this time she also gave birth to her daughter, who was later diagnosed with mild autism. “And so I took a break from getting my master’s in clinical counseling to get real world experience with my daughter and help her get what she needed so she had her best chance in life,” she told me. “That was a struggle however, because some of the best professionals in Omaha misdiagnosed her.”

At this point she found herself very thankful for her time in school. “Had I not have taken those classes, I don’t know that I would have been able to advocate as well as I did for her,” she continued. From there, Amanda got her massage therapy license. One of her specialties was infant massage, helping young children with disabilities to better their chances at non-simulative adversity.

Due to a series of unfortunate events, the company that Amanda worked for closed. “And so for the first time in my life, since I was 14, I was unemployed this summer,” she explained. But being the positive person that she is, Amanda found it a great opportunity to really consider what she wanted to do next. “And I got to spend the summer with my kids,” she asserted. “And what single mom gets to do that?”

So Amanda returned to school. At the suggestion of her academic advisor, Amanda contacted Lisa Dougherty, HR director at the Ollie Webb Center. “I called Lisa just to interview her and see what she thought I could do to give my resume some pushups,” she said. “And lo and behold, here I am! It was really serendipitous. It’s really been the best thing for us. I love what I do!” Amanda continues to work on her master’s degree. When she finishes she hopes to work as a therapist for individuals with disabilities and their families.
