Secondly, we can’t wait for you to meet our new facilitator, Isabella, who is studying psychology at Creighton University, has a lot of experience working with children and people with disabilities, and she has a younger brother who has Autism. And of course, we are also thrilled to have Jamie co-facilitating again this year. He has been a steadfast group leader who keeps the kids engaged in discussion and fun.

Lastly, please also let us know if you have a child who has “aged out” of Sibshops (14 or older). We may be interested in utilizing them as supportive mentors/volunteers during the program.

SAVE THE DATE: Fire & Safety Day - August 18, 2018
Watch for registration information soon!

This event is for individuals of any age who have a special need and their families. It is hard to predict how anyone will behave in an emergency situation. Because of this, Fire and Safety Day is an excellent opportunity to meet face to face with emergency personnel, explore and learn about firetrucks, firefighter gear, ambulances, seat belt safety, first aid, poison control, 911, and more that could one day keep us safe in an emergency situation.

Bring the whole family for an afternoon jam-packed full of activities designed to provide your family with fire safety education, as well as, summer fun. See the rescue helicopter land and watch the firefighters put out a live fire! The fire training facility is a state of the art facility with room to accommodate everyone. Bring swimsuits and sunscreen for the kids so they can enjoy playing in large water sprinklers at the end of the day.

Nearly five years ago, Opera Omaha’s Engagement Programs Manager contacted Jim Hoggatt, Ollie Webb Center, Inc.’s Artistic Director of The Art of Imagination to discuss possible partnership opportunities. This initial contact led to a strong and exciting collaboration between the two programs. Since that time, Ollie Webb Center, Inc.’s (OWCI) program participants have attended opera rehearsals and Q&A sessions with the performers, dancers, and directors of Opera Omaha as well as participated in voice and music master classes with the Holland Community Opera Fellowship program.

“The Holland Community Opera Fellowship brings community-minded, entrepreneurial artists to live and work in Omaha, to serve as an ambassador of the company by developing relationships with community leaders, and to design and implement unique projects combining artistry and musicianship, leadership, advocacy, and citizenship.”

Participants enrolled in OWCI’s Musical Theatre and Vocal Training classes have benefited greatly from being involved with the opera's fellows. Jessica Johnson Brock and Chabrelle Williams hosted several master classes with OWCI participants over the two years of their fellowship. They practiced movement and stage presence exercises as well as activities designed to strengthen vocal abilities. OWCI instructors Colleen Kilcoyne and Shannon Bittner-Miller, each expressed their amazement at how involved all of the participants became in the master classes. Bittner-Miller remarked, “After each workshop as we were driving back to the Ollie Webb Center, individuals were asking me when the next master class would take place. They were that excited.”

Most recently, Opera Omaha invited OWCI individuals and instructors to participate in interviews with possible future fellowship recipients. The Opera Omaha fellows have also invited OWCI Musical Theatre students to perform with them at their final showcase on Saturday, April 28th at the Hot Shops Arts Center. The partnership between Opera Omaha and OWCI remains strong with future master classes already planned with the incoming fellows.

In the fall of 2017, Ollie Webb Center, Inc. (OWCI) pursued a partnership with Planet Fitness. With the help of Planet Fitness’ Regional Manager, OWCI’s Supported Employment department worked diligently to connect four job seekers to competitive employment opportunities within Planet Fitness’ organization. These four individuals were quickly hired to fill diverse employment needs at three locations throughout the metropolitan area.

Planet Fitness’ Regional Manager recently shared, “We are honored to work with Ollie Webb. Planet Fitness is known as the ‘Judgment Free Zone’, this is not only true for our members but our staff as well. We feel privileged to help develop skills in the workplace that will help not only today but in the growth of these employees for years to come. The individuals we work with oftentimes teach us as much as we teach them.”

Testimonials from other Planet Fitness leadership team members demonstrate their dedication to working with individuals with disabilities: “Shawn is an absolute joy to be around and work with” and “Mikeal and Alex are both hard workers. They always come in with smiles on their faces. They always want to learn new things.”

As a whole, the Planet Fitness team has embraced the goal of community inclusion and has played an integral part in welcoming and training these new employees and their job coaches. The commitment from Planet Fitness helps promote and provide an avenue for teaching and reinforcing employability skills and also offers ongoing opportunities for career growth.

"At Planet Fitness, I like it because if I need help, people are very helpful and friendly and answer my questions." - Alex

"My favorite thing about Planet Fitness is the people I work with." - Mikeal

"I work Monday, Wednesday, and Friday every week. I have four bosses here and they all help me out." — Shawn

"I love the job. I love the patrons. I love my coworkers. Really I really do. It’s a perfect fit for me, not a good fit but it’s honestly a perfect fit." - Askia
Recently Ollie Webb Center, Inc.’s (OWCI) Artistic Director Jim Hoggatt sat down with one of our continuing education instructors, Shannon Bittner-Miller, to discuss a new class that was created for the 2018 winter semester. In this Board Game Design class, participants create original art, design layouts, and step-by-step directions for a custom game.

JH You helped create a class for OWCI’s continuing education program called Board Game Design. What kind of things do you do in the class?

SBM We play a lot of games and then analyze those games as well as study the history of games, including why people play games. We’ve studied age-appropriate games and educational games.

JH And your students are also creating their own games?

SBM Yes. Every individual by the end of the semester will have created their own board game or card game. We already have one game completed and we are in our third round of testing for that game.

JH What are the challenges you’re finding with this class?

SBM Class participants trusting themselves—new experiences, trusting themselves and their designs. They have created some really great designs. Personally I find a lot of the designs are equal to or more creative than some of the designs by college students that I’ve seen. We’re lucky because we’ve been able to borrow some of the same curriculum as the college programs. We’ve been following all the same steps as they would in a college course. And it’s really going well. We’re trying to push ourselves.

JH Can you describe one of the games that a class participant has created in class?

SBM We have a WWE Wrestling game. We have a Spanish to English game that teaches numbers, animals and other Spanish phrases. We have UNO the Board Game. We also have a golf card game, where you win by having the lowest score, and the designer doesn’t even play golf.

JH You’ve partnered with local organizations for this project. One is the Spielbound Board Game Café. What are the others?

SBM We are also working with the South Omaha Library. The librarians actually accepted a challenge to battle our students in an UNO tournament. We’ve also created a lunchtime UNO tournament at the Ollie Webb Center.

JH And the partnerships are working well?

SBM Yes. Everyone has been very helpful. The truth is that board games are now more popular than they’ve ever been. So, you now can find board game clubs and even classes on board games at the University of Nebraska.
